Week of Independence at Karazin University

Today, more than ever, we understand the importance of talking about history, as our country defends its independence with arms in hand. According to the organisers of the event, as part of Independence Week, the lecturers and participants commemorate our predecessors who made a significant contribution to the history of Ukraine, particularly in the Kharkiv region.

Maryna Hryhorieva, a historian, translator, curator of the excursion project "Discover Karazin University", head of the international ratings department of the Karazin University Public Relations Centre, and an expert in the history of university education, museum studies, and translation studies, started the week's equator. The lecturer spoke on the topic "Only to fight is to live": Reflections on the University's Mission in Times of War".

During the lecture, it was said that the war for freedom has always been fought in university classrooms, and the university has always been and remains a carrier of various scientific, cultural ideas and European democratic values.

Now, during a full-scale war, the idea of a university is much broader than "just teaching". The university must shape the policy of memory so that each of the fallen soldiers remains in history. The Week of independence ended with two events at the University Museum of Archaeology. Kostiantyn Pelyashenko gave the guests a tour of the Archaeological Research of Karazin University Scientists in the Period of Independence of Ukraine. <https://karazin.ua/en/news/tyzhden-nezalezhnosti-v-nbsp-karazinskomu-universyteti/>

International Day of Peace

On 21 September, the world celebrates the Day of Peace, established by a UN General Assembly resolution in 1982.

On 21 September 2023, Karazinites in Kharkiv woke up due to the explosions. Due to the missiles fired by Russia. In the "morning of peace", Ukrainians in Kyiv, Khmelnytskyi, Rivne, Cherkasy, and Lviv woke up due to the explosions as well.

3501 days have passed since the annexation of Crimea. 3501 days without peace for Ukraine. While the whole world celebrates the Day of Peace, Ukraine has been fighting for this peace every second for 9 years now, not only for itself but for the whole Europe. The price of peace is too high. On this day, the Karazin community honours each and every one of those who stand in defence of Ukraine. Thank you for these titanic efforts. Peace in the world is possible when no one stands aside in the struggle for justice and freedom, when the world finally chooses the side of light.
